OSI Investigation

As you know, OSI has been directed by the Attorney General to conduct a thorough investigation of the whereabouts of Josef Mengele. Your aid could prove very valuable in this effort.

It would be very useful if you could provide OSI with any documents, reports or other information which your organization or its members may have concerning the past or present location of Mengele. If you believe it would be appropriate, we can, of course, meet to pursue the matter further.

Thank you for your assistance.

Our reunion will be after the Passover holidays. Thank you.

In this Issue

This issue commemorates and celebrates many holidays—among them VE Day, Shavuot, Memorial Day, and Flag Day. It is especially appropriate, at this time, to reiterate, and actualize, the words of the prophet Amos: "and let justice roll down like waters, and righteousness like an overflowing stream." ## View From the Top

by Samuel Greenberg
National Commander

As your National Commander, I have been involved in several key areas these last months: one is veteran's affairs and the other is the issue of Nazi War Criminals. I should like, in this column, to fill you in on my activities in these areas.

On March 20th, I testified before the Joint House/Senate Veteran's Affairs Committee. In my testimony, highlights of which are excerpted below, I gave our analysis of the VA's budget request for Fiscal year '86 and presented our legislative agenda, consisting of policies we have supported in the past as well as new policies that were passed at the last national convention. It was very heartening to have our National Service Officers from all over the country and members from the Washington, D.C. and Baltimore echelons with me when I was testifying.

In the other sphere, that of Nazi War Criminals and their being brought to justice, there has recently been a lot of press about the Baltic and Ukrainian emigre' groups and their attempt to stymie the efforts of the Office of Special Investigations. We have been aware of these activities, as we are aware of a VFW Resolution, passed at their 1984 Convention, which censured the Office of Special Investigations for their "persecution" of the war criminals—referred to by the VFW as "Americanized refugees."

In a letter to Mr. Billy Ray Cameron, Commander-in-Chief of the VFW, I informed him that the Jewish War Veterans of the USA has commended the OSI for bringing Nazi War Criminals to justice. I told Mr. Cameron that "we do not want people who are responsible for the atrocities perpetrated in Europe to live in our country."

I also wrote a letter to the Attorney General Edward Meese, reiterating our continued support for OSI and for their historically and morally critical task. You may have noted that, in our "Letters to the Editor," Mr. Sher, the head of OSI, has called upon us, upon you—the members of JWV—for help in the Mengele case. We are recognized as an organization that has consistently pressed for justice to Nazi War Criminals—and we will continue to do so!

As I prepare this column, I am also readying myself for our JWV Trip to Israel and Spain, which I anticipate with great pleasure. I will be staying on abroad to meet Pope John Paul II at the Vatican and with the HIAS representatives in Rome and Austria. Visits with our Ambassadors in Rome, Austria and Tel Aviv are also scheduled.

From May 5-9, I will take part in a momentous commemorative gathering—the World Assembly, to be held in Israel, marking 40 years since the defeat of Nazi Germany.

This year, 1985, is a dramatic one in world history. As celebrations and commemorations of the end of WWII take place throughout the world, we remember our fallen brethren. As Jewish War Veterans, we remember the 6 million who perished in the Holocaust. This year, as we commence our 90th Anniversary, let us rededicate ourselves to overcoming the forces of bigotry and to the pursuit of justice.

This year, Shavuot and Memorial Day coincide—a coincidence that is fortuitous and instructive. As we remember our dead, let us also remember why they fought and died—to uphold the principles and values on which this country was founded; the principles and values embodied in the Torah, the giving of which we celebrate on Shavuot. Let us remember the basic morality that is at the heart of our heritage, and continue to perpetuate the ideals we cherish.

National Commander Greenberg's Testimony Before the Joint House/ Senate Veteran's Affairs Committee

Messers Chairmen and members of the Veteran's Affairs Committees:

The Jewish War Veterans of the USA, the oldest active war veterans organization in the USA, is honored to have this opportunity to state our legislative agenda and analysis of the VA's budget request for FY '86. First, I would like to extend my appreciation and thanks to Chairman Montgomery, and his committee and staff, for their hard work and continued commitment to our nation's veterans. And to Senator Murkowski, we look forward to establishing a working relationship with your committee and staff. We know that you will make a fine chairman.

NC Greenberg presents his sculpture commemorating Raoul Wallenberg to the Superintendent and Asst. Superintendent of the Raoul Wallenberg High School in San Francisco.

One fact is certain: as long as Congress' two veterans committees continue to work constructively with our nation's veteran service organizations, our veterans will receive adequate compensation and health benefits that they have earned and deserve. In many ways this year's crisis, combined with the growth of the aging veteran population, will severely test this relationship. Our response to this situation will not be a defeatist one. We will support creative legislative proposals that will make it possible for veterans of all ages to receive adequate medical care, compensation, and benefits.

Nat'l.
Commander
Greenberg testifies
before the Joint
House/Senate
Veterans' Affairs Committee, accompanied by
NED Stone.

With this in mind, I would like to offer our analysis of the VA's budget request for FY '86, a legislative priority in its own right, before I outline our legislative agenda which will reflect more long term priorities. I will concentrate our analysis of the VA's budget on their proposed legislation, funds targeted for medical construction and medical care, medical and prosthetic research, and the VA's employment projections. We support the 4.1% increase in compensation without any reservations. In our opinion the VA should be commended for protecting and fighting for veterans' COLAs.

One proposal that we do not support is increasing the loan origination fee, which may result in many veterans finding themselves locked out of the home buying market. The other legislative proposals, the means test and reimbursements from third party insurance carriers, demand a more selective response. Veterans with adequate health insurance or any HMO have, at the very least, signaled their intention of using private medical care for their non-service connected illnesses. We think it is only fair that some reimbursement occur if these veterans choose to use VA facilities for treatment of a non-service connected illness or injury. The VA's budget request for construction programs is generally not adequate. Specifically, we believe the VA has not proposed adequate funding for the Philadelphia site; they seem to have completely forgotten about the proposed VAMC for Baltimore; and, in general, this budget does not reflect the growing health needs of an aging veteran population. Messers Chairman, funds requested for medical care are more reasonable. Still, I would like to point out some deficient areas.

We question the VA's assumption with respect to the number of patients they expect to treat in their hospitals, nursing homes, and outpatient clinics. A positive note in the VA's medical care budget is the planned increase in the number of beds for nursing homes. We would also like to see the same trend used in connection with domiciliaries, but this year's budget marks the fifth straight year that beds were decreased in domiciliaries.

Another item in the VA's budget that deserves comment is funding designated for medical and prosthetic research. Continued research in the area of prosthetics is very important. That is why we are most displeased that the VA has recommended a reduction of $5 million for medical and prosthetic research.

Finally, we would like to comment on the proposed employment levels for Fiscal 1986. Last year Congress appropriated funds for a set number of employees in the VA's Department of Medicine and Surgery. This number has been cut in Fiscal 1985. Unfortunately, Fiscal 1986 employment levels are frozen at the reduced 1985 levels. The final analysis is that the VA is at least 4,000 employees short of the number needed to provide services to veterans.

The second employment issue is less clear than the first but its impact would be just as great. In the VA's budget for FY '86 the VA has requested $25 million for the reorganization of 59 DVB regional offices into 3 processing centers. The VA has signaled its intention, for a variety of reasons, to drop these plans and instead concentrate their efforts on automating all 59 regional centers. As it stands now, we do not favor the consolidation of 59 regional offices into 3 processing centers. However, we do support automation of existing facilities or any proposal that would make the system more cost effective. That concludes our analysis of the VA's FY '86 budget request and we will now outline our formal legislative agenda.

One of the more popular and effective programs was the establishment of Vietnam Veteran Outreach Centers. We commend your committees for initiating legislation that passed the Congress and that extended the life of these outreach centers through Fiscal 1987. However, we are still concerned that the trend will continue where Congress appropriates the money only to have the VA return it to the Treasury. We urge your committees to hold oversight hearings on this matter to ensure the integrity of the program.

Considering the fact that the VA is the third largest Federal agency, whose work force affects our nation's 30 million living veterans, the VA should have a voice in the Cabinet. We are pleased that Sen. Murkowski is sponsoring such legislation.

The Jewish War Veterans of the USA has always felt that Vietnam veterans should receive just compensation if they are suffering from service-connected diseases thought to be linked to exposure to Agent Orange. We commend Congress, and these two committees, for the swift passage of legislation that addressed many of our concerns.

Atomic veterans are a different story, though they have similar needs. Atomic veterans, in our opinion, have an equal claim to receiving adequate compensation from the VA. Therefore, we support legislation that will liberalize guidelines defining harmful exposure to radiation during either service or test connected assignments.

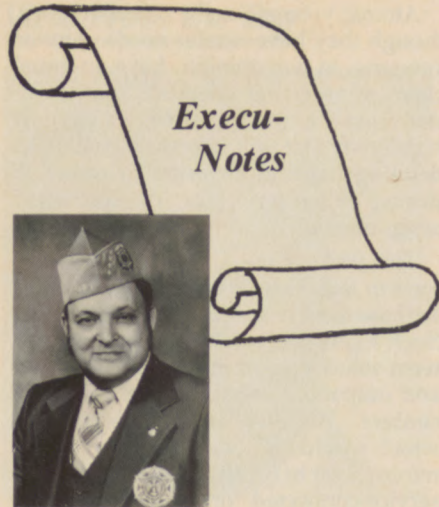

The JWV of the USA support all efforts to make health care more accessible to those veterans who live in rural areas. Such legislation will be an effective long term solution to stem rising health costs and outpatient imbalances in our urban centers. We also support legislation which would authorize the Veterans Administration to furnish each veteran with service-connected or non-service connected disability such drugs and medicines as are prescribed by private physicians for treatment of that disability.

The issue of a service pension for World War I veterans needs immediate attention. Less than 350,000 veterans remain of the 4.5 million who came back from the trenches of World War I. Congress must pass this legislation immediately as these veterans are dying at a rate of 5,000 per year.

Another longstanding legislative issue is the establishment of Judicial Review of VA decisions. We believe it is critical that American veterans receive the same Constitutional rights granted all other citizens. We support legislative proposals, such as the one introduced by Bob Edgar, Chairman of House Subcommittee on Hospitals and Health Care, that would improve the delivery of health care to older veterans. Last, but not least, we also support legislation that would amend Title 38, US Code, by expanding the list of diseases presumed to be residual to the POW experience. Along the same lines, we support legislation that would extend the life of a VA pilot program that created a halfway house program for veterans suffering from chemical dependency.

In closing, I would like to once again commend your two fine committees and staff for all your diligent efforts. I believe we have a lot of hard work ahead of us. We must protect veterans from ill conceived budget reductions by offering and supporting creative proposals that will not cut veterans out of the system. There is no group in this country that has more of a claim on America's conscience and pocketbook than the veterans who have fought, bled, and died to defend this country—as well as those who were prepared to fight but didn't serve during a national emergency—and preserve it as a bastion for democracy.

Thank you for your time and consideration.

Things are humming! Convention time is closer, our 90th Anniversary is "around the corner" and our need to combat revisions to history and anti-Semitism is NOW!

National Service Officers Convene at Headquarters

In March, we brought our National Service Officers to Washington for training and briefing sessions on the latest information concerning VA benefits and service to veterans. We arranged a full schedule for them and I know they left here well-informed and better equipped to continue providing all necessary guidance and help to our veterans.

The speakers who came to address our National Service Officers were: Milford Clayton, Director of the Baltimore Regional Office; James Fuller, Chief Adjudication Officer; Merwin Rosen, Rating Board Specialist; Stuart Bossom, Director, Administrator Service, Board of Veterans Appeals; J. Gary Hickman, speaking on Compensation and Pension; and Kenneth Eaton, Chairman of the Board of Veterans Appeals.

The National Service Officers' stay in DC also included visits to their congressmen. They also attended the hearing of the Joint House/Senate Veterans Affairs Committee at which National Commander Greenberg testified.

Shaar Hagai: A Huge Success

I want to share with you parts of a letter I received last month from Rabbi Mort Rubin, the National Projects Coordinator for the Jewish National Fund. He wrote about the JWV Recreation area at Shaar Hagai, and I quote:

"The project was described to us as being, without doubt, one of the most attractive in the country. Spread over a large area with forest roads separating sections, the recreation grounds feature picnic facilities with concrete tables and play elements for kids of all ages."

Cynthia Rotstein, the Keren Kayemet (JNF) expert on Projects, is quoted by Rabbi Rubin to us, and she wrote: "I have seen many different recreation areas over the years, each with a flavor of its own. I must say, though, this one enthralled me more than usual . . . I can only give highest compliments to both JWV for raising the $100,000 and KKL planners and work teams for establishing such a lovely recreation area."

Rabbi Rubin is sending us a full set of photos which we will publish in The Veteran, display at our convention in Orlando, and place into a portfolio to be shown to visitors to Headquarters.

The National Commander plans to visit Shaar Hagai when in Israel and looks forward to seeing this wonderful area firsthand.

As you all know, one never completes one project without beginning another. We are already past the $40,000 mark on our current commitment to the JNF—a commitment, like Shaar Hagai, of $100,000. It is very satisfying to know that our organization is helping with the growth of Israel and I commend you on your outstanding effort and encourage you to "keep up the good work." All orders for trees must come to National Headquarters. Each tree is $5.00 and may be made out "in honor of . . ." or "in memory of . . ."

Fund Raising Program

Speaking of good work, after approval by the NEC, we have just embarked on a new fund-raising program for JWV. Address labels will be sent to members with a request for a contribution to JWV. I urge you to support this effort wholeheartedly. These labels are attractive and utilitarian; every time you stick an address label on an envelope you will know you are helping your own organization.

Membership Dues

1985 dues are payable now. Quartermasters need to send notices to delinquent members, as the last billings have gone out from National. Dues checks—along with the invoices—should be sent directly to Headquarters for expeditious processing. If you are not paid up, this is your last issue!

Convention

I hope you are planning to attend what promises to be an outstanding Convention this year, to be held in Orlando from August 18-25. We are planning an exciting week in a fun-filled part of the country. Scheduling of workshops and speakers is being carefully planned so as to maximize your stay in the Orlando area. This issue of The Jewish Veteran features a 2 page spread on the Convention and includes a Convention Room Reservation form which we hope you will fill out and return now!

You can also mark your calendars for our 1986 Convention (Sept. 2-9) in Hawaii! The 1985 Convention will kick-off our 90th anniversary year, and the '86 Convention will culminate the year. From Sun to Sun, with best wishes for a year filled with sunshine.

Video Cassette of Dedication Available

A professional quality video cassette (VHS format only) of the dedication, complete with sound and titles, is now available through Headquarters. The cassette can be bought ($75) and/or rented ($15). I also encourage you to avail yourselves of the excellent films, video-tapes and film strips that have been readied, through our audio-visual library, for your viewing pleasure. More information is available from National Headquarters.

Memorial Day/Shavuot

This Memorial Day will be especially poignant as 1985 marks 40 years since the end of WWII. While commemorative ceremonies and reunions are ongoing this year, Memorial Day serves as a focal point. I would like to remind you that this year, the Federal observance of Memorial Day coincides with the second day of Shavuot.

Guidelines have been issued from Headquarters and sent to all Commanders and NEC Representatives addressing this situation. To reiterate: All JWV units are directed to refrain from participating in, or as part of, any parade, or the carrying of any colors in any parade, or from the conducting of fund-raising activities.

Echelons are encouraged to honor our fallen veterans in community memorial services. It is fitting for us, as we observe Memorial Day 1985, to remember in our Yizkor prayers those who gave their lives to defend and preserve our country.

By Pearl Laufer

At the end of this month, we will celebrate the holiday of Shavuot, also known as Z'man Matan Toraitanu—the time of the giving of our Torah. This holiday commemorates an occasion which can be seen as a high point in the history of the world. The Ten Commandments have had a seminal influence on the worlds' major religions and contain, within them, the core for the code of moral behavior upon which western civilization, as we know it, is based. The Ten Commandments, given by God, the Supreme Parent, to the children of Israel, are general guidelines for how to live one's life—vis a vis God, and vis a vis other human beings.

There is precedent, in the Bible, for instruction by a parent to his child on how to live his life. Those "teachings" are specific, tailored to the personality and character of the blessed. Those blessings are also the prototype for the increasingly popular ethical wills, in which a parent bequeaths not belongings but a moral prescription for how to live one's life. The importance of these "blessings" is perhaps best illustrated by the famous Bible story of Jacob and Esau, wherein Jacob deceives his father and, with the help of his mother, outwits his brother so as to receive the blessing of the first born. There is much more than material wealth at stake in that blessing. Blessings were imbued with power; they were, effectively, a prophetic telling, by the blesser, of how the blessed's life, and that of his progeny, would be lived.

In post-Biblical times, the impetus for prescribing the life of one's child remains. Taught by example as well as by precept, offspring reading the ethical wills of their parents see reflected, in them, the parents' lives as well as their wishes for their children.

Although ethical wills are not absolutely Jewish, we do see, in Judaism, a consistently strong influence on the fam-

Amongst the papers in the Museum Archives is the following letter written by Maj. General Klein's father, Leopold, intended as an ethical will.

Now I am very ill. The hours left me in this world must remember only a few. But I am not dissatisfied. I am reminded of the words of the Patriarch Jacob, who prayed: "Oh, Lord, let me not die without illness." I, too, have prayed that I might not die without illness and suffering -- for, from his sick bed, a man is privileged to re-live his life as the years pass on review before his eyes, and he comes to know the truth of life. My prayer has been answered: for the past two years I have suffered great bodily pain -- and before my eyes have been re-enacted the events of my days. Everything comes back to me -- the many lands to which I have journeyed --- the people I have known --- the pleasures and disappointments I have experienced --- they all return, even from the time of my earliest youth. What prologue to eternity could be more beautiful, more fitting than this!

The passing picture of my years has filled me with faith and courage and confidence, has dispelled all fear of the unknown, the other world. I have reviewed the dark and painful days I have lived; I have had demonstrated to me again how faith and hope have borne me through time of struggle. It has been given to me to see the truth of life—to see it whole, without a veil, and to recognize the falsity in the lives of others. And the greatest treasures I have possessed I recognized to be love and devotion to my family, loyalty to my fellow man and respect for truth.

Now that my hours are so few and so short I am convinced that I know the real truth of life. I am grateful, therefore, to have exchanged my years of suffering for this hour of enlightenment about the life I have lived—before I leave it. And, I reflect how fortunate it is that we cannot look into the future. How foolish to spend one's days in seeking after tomorrow. If we could all partake in the wisdom of providence which has ordered things thus, we should appreciate more deeply the life we are living and must live. What would be the incentive to life if we could ask the fates about tomorrow? Without hope and expectation it would be pointless to exist. For hope and expectation are the children of faith.

And out of this wisdom, bought with pain, let me bequeath to you, my children, as much as I can. If one of you should make a mistake, let him admit it. Hold fast to truth, for any life has a short life, but a long after-life . . . and returns like a ghostly gnawing animal to worry the fibre of one's conscience. Truth has never hurt anyone . . . but falsehood is the father of all dishonesty and eventually destroys the character, rendering its victims useless and detestable in human society. I want my children always to feel their father's consciousness with them, watching over them.

I have only one wish: that my family—and I include my friends also—should carry on the work I have tried to do, the job I have not finished and so should their children, and their children's children, in order that this may one day be a better world, free of jealousy and hatred, a world of mutual respect among men, a world of peace. For peace is happiness in the highest degree. Without peace, happiness will be forever incomplete.

This "World War" must end soon. When it does come to an end, the principles of justice, mercy and, above all, reason—which dictates all the rest—must guide the nations concerned in the establishment of peace. Otherwise, these nations will only lay the foundation for later, and greater, world conflict. If friend and former foe refuse to understand and consider each other's rights and circumstances, the carnage can only be interrupted—and that for just a while. May the victor be care-

Dear Member,

Between now and June 15th, your affiliation with J WV entitles you to enroll in a plan that pays you as much as $64.29 per day when you're hospitalized. That's $450.00 a week. And, it's paid direct to you—not to the doctor or hospital—beginning with your fourth day of covered hospitalization.

But, your J WV Group Hospital Indemnity Insurance Plan doesn't stop there. It also pays you cash for reimbursement of emergency out-patient treatment and for post-hospital convalescence. Your acceptance is guaranteed, if you are a Member or Auxiliary Member age 64 or under who is currently engaged in full-time employment or is an active housewife. Other applicants are subject to the insurance company's usual underwriting standards.

Now—before an accident or illness puts you in the hospital—is the time to get the added protection you may need. I urge you to review the following information and to enroll today. Remember, our Guaranteed Acceptance Enrollment Period ends June 15th.

Sincerely,

Sam Greenberg
National Commander
